Dear customer!

Research, Innovation, Technology is the title of the stamp series that is now being released in its second edition. The series depicts Norwegian innovations that have broken through either nationally or internationally. The QR code on the stamps goes to the Research Council of Norway's website, which presents both the stamp motifs and the people behind them. Enzo Finger designed the issue, which this time has motifs from both the deep sea and outer space.

Three mopeds and a motorcycle are the motifs on this year's stamps in the series on communications history. The series started in 2017 with cars and continued in 2019 with bicycles. Many people have driven or ridden a moped or motorcycle at some point in their lives, and this year's motifs will probably speak to them. Erland Dilling drew the beautiful vehicles, and Camilla Kvien Jensen designed the stamps.

In September, Norway Post took part in the Dovre railway line's jubilee trip from Dombås to Trondheim. There were special stamps at each stop along the way and special jubilee envelopes. Read more on page 8.

National Stamp Day 50 Years

This year marks 50 years since the National Stamp Day was held for the first time.

Today, most local stamp clubs celebrate Stamp Day by arranging a small exhibition on hobby stamp collecting. To mark the milestone, we have created a special envelope franked with one of the current issues and cancelled with a special cancellation.
