Dear customer!

At the time of writing, Norway is more or less closed due to the coronavirus. For many people this has been a peaceful time that has allowed them to sit down with their stamp collections.

On 8 May 75 years of peace should have been celebrated all over Norway, with the main event taking place at Akershus Fortress in Oslo. Obviously this was cancelled, but the stamp to mark 75 years of peace was still issued on that date. Martin Mörck engraved the stamp, which depicts King Haakon taking his first steps on Norwegian soil after five years in exile. The stamp was also issued in a miniature sheet showing North Sea traffic, the Norwegian Merchant Navy, the resistance movement and airdrop.

The new Munch Museum was due to open before the summer started. The opening of this spectacular museum has been put back, but the stamp for the new museum will be issued on 12 June. Enzo Finger is the designer behind the stamp.

In Autumn 2019, Posten Norge launched a competition on social media in conjunction with the Norwegian Kennel Club to find four dogs that would be issued on stamps. In the course of a couple of weeks we received over 8,000 photographs, and the jury was given the difficult task of selecting the four dogs. The stamps will be issued on 12 June, featuring our four worthy winners. Kristin Slotterøy is responsible for the design.

For the autumn we have several exciting stamps coming up, and the first will be issued on 14 August.

We wish you a wonderful summer!
